PAYS DEAR PRICE FOR DISTURBING
PUBLIC WORSHIP

Discharging his pistol in churches filled with worshippers was an amusing and entertaining diversion Sunday night for Lewis Peasly, negro, of 20 Foote street, when drunk, but the experience proved an exceptionally costly one for Peasly, a very sober negro, who appeared Monday afternoon before Recorder A. W. Calloway in police court.

Peasly was confronted with city charges charging drunkenness, disorderly conduct and disturbing public worship, and a state charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was fined an aggregate of $101 in the city cases and bound over to the state court under $500 bond on the pistol charge.

Peasly was arrested Sunday night by Call Officers McDaniel and Crankshaw after he is said to have emptied two negro churches in the vicinity of Foote street. Both churches, filled to the overflowing when Peasly entered, were vacated in record time, it was said.

FIRST LIEUTENANT IS INJURED BY AX
IN CHOPPING DOOR

Fire Lieutenant R. C. McGee, of company No. 16, was treated at Grady hospital Monday night for an ax wound in the right leg which he received late Monday afternoon when attempting to break down a door to extinguish flames in the shop of the Sophie Mae candy corporation, 358 Means street. Lieutenant McGee was trying to chop the lock off of the door. The ax rebounded and slipped, striking him on the leg.

The fire, which did only small damage, was said to have been caused by the current being left on in an electric baker which became overheated and exploded. The table on which it was resting caught fire, but the blaze was extinguished by use of the small chemical line.

Bus Association Meet.
P. B. Vaughn, of Roswell, Ga., president of the Georgia Bus association, has called a meeting of the members of that association for 10 o'clock Thursday morning, at the Kimball house, to discuss bus regulations and legislation, according to Captain Roper, of the Dixie Coaches, Inc.

7-Year Search Ends in Arrest Of Alabama Man

Following a nation-wide search of more than seven years, Sherman Crawley, 27 years of age, one of three men said to have been convicted in connection with the death of a paymaster of the Warrior Coal Mining company at Warrior, Ala., was captured last Friday in Mansfield, Mass., through the activities of the William T. Glone National Detective agency.

Crawley arrived in Atlanta Monday afternoon in custody of detectives who are taking him back to Montgomery, from where he is said to have escaped. At the time of his conviction 15 years ago, he had been in the company of the president of a Mansfield meat company. Crawley, alias Martin, at the time of his capture, was the proprietor of one of the most up-to-date barber shops in Mansfield.

When detectives of the Glone agency approached him in his shop he is said to have first denied his identity and then claimed that he had never been in this section of the country, but when confronted by a warrant for his arrest, he quietly accompanied the detectives to the office of the company.

Here he is said to have been identified by Bertillon measurements and two scars. After this, Crawley is said to have confessed. He was arrested in Massachusetts through letters which he was writing to his mother in Columbus, Ga.

In addition to other charges Crawley is now liable to prosecution for bigamy, as he has a wife living in Alabama according to the report of detectives. He left for Montgomery Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

COMMITTEE OPENS MILK PROBE TODAY

Armed with additional alleged evidence that failure of officials of the city health department to make proper inspections and rigidly enforce milk laws has resulted in insanitary conditions at many Atlanta hotels, restaurants, soda fountains, dairies and other establishments, Councilman W. E. Saunders, chairman of the sanitary committee of city council, is expected to demand an explanation from the health department at this afternoon's meeting of the committee.

Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health officer, Monday declined to comment on the situation, but intimated that he would have some disclosures to make at today's session.

Duvall Backs Department.
Alderman W. B. Duvall, who last year was head of the sanitary committee Monday with statements that since the new milk ordinance was made effective several months ago, quality of milk has shown much improvement, and that satisfactory inspections were made throughout last year. He also intimated that police might be behind the movement, as election of a city health officer for a two-year term comes up early in July.

Councilman Saunders, Councilman W. Garland Cooper, also a member of the committee, and several other city officials, Monday continued the personal inspection that was started last week by Mr. Saunders effect early this year, pointed out that of the four city milk and dairy inspectors, only two are provided with automobiles, and consequently, the other two are unable to inspect any place outside of town. There are more than 200 dairies furnishing milk to Atlantans, he pointed out.

town business section, and there were only two that showed any evidence of recent inspection.

"In the others there was every conceivable form of germ conveyor, and I think that the places either should be forced to clean up or close up."

Insanitary Conditions.
Mr. Saunders issued a statement Saturday charging that insanitary conditions had been found at many of the dairies visited by him, and that milk also easily could be contaminated by insanitary conditions in several of the city's most exclusive clubs and hotels.

At all but two of the six dairies visited by him, Mr. Saunders charged, inspectors have not been made for between three and six months.

Dr. Duvall, in addition to commenting on the improved quality of the milk sold since the pure milk ordinance went into effect early this year, pointed out that of the four city milk and dairy inspectors, only two are provided with automobiles, and consequently, the other two are unable to inspect any place outside of town. There are more than 200 dairies furnishing milk to Atlantans, he pointed out.

STATE COIN DRIVE PLANS PERFECTED

Final plans were outlined Monday night for a continued intensive campaign of Confederate Memorial coin salesmen when several hundred active workers from over the state met with their representatives in the Georgia legislature. The meeting followed a chicken dinner given in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium at 6:30 o'clock.

Attorney General George M. Napier presided. In a short address Mr. Napier told of the result of the work in the state to date and of the purpose of having the Georgia representatives in the legislature cooperate. It was proposed to have bags of Confederate Memorial coins at every picnic and public gathering in the state July 4.

Several one-minute reports were heard from representatives whose counties had done most in the sale to date. Promises were made by many more to go back home and see that their county and their community did their best in the proposed intensive campaign through July 4.

W. L. Shaddix, director for Georgia, was in charge of the details of the dinner. The meeting was called at the instance of Preston S. Arkwright, state chairman; Gordon Lee and Attorney General George M. Napier, state vice chairmen.

It was announced that the Kiwanis club, of Dallas, Ga., had subscribed for 250 coins in advance of the campaign sale to be launched in the community. According to Cabel Cohen, chairman of the Paulding county sale, the two mills at Dallas, the Dallas Hosiery mills and the Liberty mills, have already subscribed 100 per cent for their employees.

Quake Inquiry Plans Begun By U. S. Government Bureau; Tremors Were Anticipated

California Transversed by Earth 'Faults,' Scientist Asserts—Red Cross Begins Relief.

BY THOMAS J. STOKES.
Washington, June 29.—The American Red Cross set in motion its machinery for relief for a stricken earthquake area about Santa Barbara, Cal., Monday, and both army and navy facilities in the area are ready to aid.

Red Cross national headquarters here directed the San Francisco office to take all necessary steps for relief. If the need arises, relief will be dispatched from the east. Funds were appropriated for the work, and orders for mobilization of California nurses were sent.

Admiral J. H. Dayton, commandant of the Pacific fleet, with headquarters at San Francisco, wired the navy department Monday that three naval vessels are available for immediate relief work, and that the submarine tender Savannah could get to Santa Barbara Thursday morning.

The navy department has ordered him and the commandant of the eleventh naval district, with headquarters at San Diego, to use their own discretion and render all possible assistance.

Quake Study Planned.
Relief for victims of the disaster can be extended by Major General Charles T. Menoher, ninth corps area commander at San Francisco, without waiting for authority from the war department, officials said.

The nearest army troops are at Fort McArthur, near Los Angeles, 100 miles from Santa Barbara. The eleventh cavalry is at Monterey, and there are other troops at Rockwell air field and San Diego, all within 200 miles of the disaster.

Meanwhile, officials of the coast and geodetic survey here, the government agency which studies earthquakes, is awaiting a report of the quake. The survey will begin soon a comprehensive investigation of earthquakes in the United States.

Commander N. H. Heck, earthquake authority of the survey, advanced the theory that the earthquake at Santa Barbara was "set off" by the series of tremors in Montana which preceded it by only a few hours.

"The earthquake at Santa Barbara apparently was just about ready—ready in fact, records gathered by experts here indicated that such a quake would occur there somewhere around this time, Heck explained. "The waves from the Montana earthquake probably set it off."

Waves Persist Long Time.
"Of course, that does not mean that the Montana quake was the cause of the one in California, and the theory that the Montana disturbance set the other one off is just a theory. Not a great deal is known about earthquakes."

"But waves from an earthquake disturbance persist for a long time. The waves from the Montana quake may have been just enough to cause the shift which brought the California quake."

"It is not wise," he said, "to tell the time and the place where a quake may occur, if it could be known exactly enough. If it's going to occur, it will occur. It cannot be stopped. To warn people would cause a panic, and they could do nothing. Of course, it is not possible to tell exactly where and when an earthquake is going to occur."

"In an earthquake zone such as California, the signs can be read, and some general idea gained. But it is foolish to try to predict earthquakes."

Maximum Activity Noted.
Apparently, there is a period of maximum earthquake activity in the United States at this time. Heck said, recalling the numerous tremors, many of them in California, which have occurred in the last few months. There are periods of minimum and maximum earthquake activities. Though there has been considerable investigation, no one has been able to find out why, he said.

The east, Heck appears to be "settled" and immune from serious shocks, and he does not look for any disturbance in that section. California, on the other hand, is a "hot" place, with "faults," weak places, where earthquakes occur.

People who live in California and regions where earthquakes are frequent, should build their cities and homes, both as to place and to style, to withstand shocks, he said, and believe that this will be one result of the general investigation that the coast and geodetic survey will make.

SHEPHERD ACCUSER FREED OF MURDER

Olsen of the municipal court, who investigated the investigation and an attorney for Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancée, and the co-guardian with Mrs. Shepherd, of young McClintock.

First action in the fight for probation of McClintock's will, drawn up by Shepherd, and leaving nearly all the youth's fortune to Shepherd, will occur Wednesday when attorneys for Miss Pope and for ten cousins of McClintock mostly from Iowa, are expected to appear in court to oppose the will.

Questioned tonight about reports that Shepherd planned retaliatory measures in the form of suits for libel or slander against various persons who had a part in the investigation, Mr. Olsen said that neither he nor Shepherd admitted tonight that such action never had been seriously considered.

"That is not our policy, and that this never has been considered seriously," said W. W. O'Brien one of the attorneys for the state, who is representing the state in the case.

Mr. O'Brien added that neither he nor his associate, William Scott Stewart, authorized a widely published interview today on the question of the prospective action in Shepherd's behalf.

DEFENSE LAWYERS DRAW BATTLE LINE

The day's session through numerous humorous clashes with the district attorney during his cross-examination. Attorneys for the government and defense estimated Monday that the case will be ready for the jury by Thursday and possibly sooner.

The defense expects to put its chief witnesses on the stand Tuesday, including former Warden Albert E. Sarantian, a prison physician who has testified that the state of the witness, Fletcher, a large number of prominent people will be called to testify as character witnesses for Fletcher.

Swearing in the reality of the prisoners from New York convicted of violating the national prohibition law. He testified Monday that he had paid $2,500 to Mrs. R. K. Wall, and Edward J. Sweeney, former prisoners, and expected to get special privileges for this money. He said he knew that the money was for the purpose of getting Fletcher out of the prison.

He said the original of the money reached Fletcher or was intended for Fletcher. He said the original of the money was purchased by the privileges was made to him and Mannie Kessler, another New York prisoner, by Sweeney and Wall.

"Price Too High."
"They first wanted $10,000, but I told them I would pay $10,000 for the whole federal prison," Sweetwood declared.

"Did you ever get any special privileges?" he asked.

"Well, Kessler was riding around with the warden three weeks after we got to the prison and it took me nine months to get outside. You can see for yourself," Sweetwood said.

In his testimony Sweetwood discussed the assignments given him. He said he finally was assigned to the office, then to the library and later was assigned to the athletic field.

"What did you do at the field?" he was asked.

"I maintained the grounds," the witness replied.

Asked about a later assignment to take care of chickens, he said he was assistant to the warden.

"You men looked after a couple of dozen chickens did you not?" he was asked.

"No; there were about 200 of them," he said.

"Chickens, or men?" was the question.

"Chickens, but they could have got that many men mighty easy, as there are plenty of them loafing around out there."

The district attorney asked him many questions concerning his "easy job" at the prison, but the witness always had a ready answer for him. He was questioned about the privilege of bathing. He said he was allowed to take all the baths he wanted under the regime of Fletcher.

"I take all the baths I want now under the new warden," he said. "I take three baths a day now, whether I need them or not."

"Bathing Is Free."
He said the bathing privilege was not a special privilege and at the request of the district attorney he cited the names of many prisoners who were allowed these baths.

Sweetwood testified that after his return from Athens, where several of the prisoners were taken to the Fletcher-Fletcher trial, last February, he was assigned to his old position in the library by the new warden. Asked about the sleeping quarters assigned him during the Fletcher regime Sweetwood said he was assigned to "A" basement and said there were many negro prisoners quartered in that section.

In relating the story of card games for high stakes Sweetwood said Graham Baughn, of Savannah, and 18 other companies for a preliminary injunction against John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, certain district officials and others. A temporary restraining order in the case was granted June 2, which had been continued in force pending Judge Baker's decision.

Heavy Toll Taken by Quakes In California Within Century

SAN FRANCISCO TREMBOR IN 1906 MOST SEVERE

BY UNITED PRESS.
Earthquakes have taken a heavy toll in California during the last century. More than 500 persons were killed and property damage of from $350,000,000 to $500,000,000 caused by the San Francisco quake alone. That was on April 18, 1906, and was one of the greatest catastrophes of history.

Earthquakes always have been common in California and minor tremors almost a daily occurrence. Residents generally are unalarmed by these quakes, which often rattle the windows and dishes in their homes.

During more than a century, there have been four shocks called "destructive"—in 1839, 1865, 1868 and in 1906. Five "exceptionally severe" quakes have been recorded at San Francisco. The worst previous to the 1906 disaster was in 1868, when five persons were killed and a dozen old buildings cracked.

The San Francisco quake, which practically destroyed the business section of San Francisco, also inflicted received $2,500 from Emanuel Sussnick, New York lawyer, which he delivered to Mrs. R. K. Wall at her home on Avon avenue. This sum was said to be part of a $5,000 payment made in behalf of Kessler and Sweetwood for the alleged granting of special favors. Belfor said he had no dealings of any kind with Fletcher in this transaction.

Richard Bailey, one of the members of the Savannah group of men convicted of violating the federal prohibition law, was a witness at the morning session. He testified that his brother-in-law paid $1,500 of the $10,000 fund raised by seven Savannah prisoners for which they were supposed to have received special favors. He said he got no benefit from this money and that it later was returned to his brother-in-law, Dr. A. F. Quill, on the grounds that the defense concerning some prison records.

Testimony Banned.
In the course of their examination of witnesses defense lawyers sought to show that the conspiracy at the prison to obtain money for prisoners' alleged special favors was really hatched by Edward J. Sweeney and W. F. Wall, former prisoners, but that the money was actually paid by William Schley Howard, attorney for Fletcher.

Willie Haas, another member of the Savannah group, was recalled to the stand and testified he loaned $6,500 to former Warden Sartain and gave, through his brother, $3,500 to the warden, which he said he was told by the warden was a loan for Sartain and Fletcher to enter the ice business. This $10,000 had no connection with the $10,000 alleged to have been paid to Lawrence Riehl, friend of Sartain, after a deal for this amount had been negotiated, according to Haas's testimony, by Father Hayden.

Attorney Marion Smith, attorney for Hayden, asked Haas if he is not having trouble with the government concerning his income tax reports. Judge Ervin declined to permit the witness to answer this question.

Mannie Kessler was recalled to the stand and testified he was paid $5,000 Christmas present to Fletcher. He said Fletcher declined to accept this money, but he said he was paid $5,000 loan to Sartain and Fletcher to help them go into the ice business in Miami. He said a check for this money was mailed to Sartain from New York, and that it was turned over to Sartain, and Fletcher later took the note back. Under cross-examination he said the transaction was legitimate in every way, and was not intended as a bribe. He said he had no transaction of any kind with Fletcher about the check.

Kessler testified that he is now assigned to quarters in a garage at the home of the present warden. He declared these quarters are better than the ones he had under Fletcher.

Attorneys William Schley Howard, W. Paul Carpenter, Hooper Alexander, representing Fletcher, and Marion Smith, representing Father Hayden, stated they expected to finish their side of the case Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning. District Attorney Belfor said he expected the case would be ready for the jury Thursday.

Elkins, W. Va., June 29.—(AP)—Federal Judge W. E. Baker today filed a memorandum denying, because of lack of jurisdiction, the application of the Mineral State Coal company and 18 other companies for a preliminary injunction against John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, certain district officials and others. A temporary restraining order in the case was granted June 2, which had been continued in force pending Judge Baker's decision.

lied the Samuels woman will be recalled to the stand to testify concerning certain conversation she and Mrs. Dutton, are said to have had while the two women were held in jail as material witnesses.

Whittle entered a plea of "not guilty" when the case was called and his attorneys claimed he had a complete alibi. He is said to have been at College Park at the time of the killing.

County officers claim Dutton made a voluntary confession in which he admitted the killing of the other man, whose name is withheld because he is still a fugitive.

Agent on Stand.
Following the selection of the jury, Attorney F. A. Lums, representing the defense, made a motion for a continuance of the case to a later date, because he had not sufficient time to prepare his case and that several important defense witnesses were absent. This was overruled by the court.

United States prohibition agent for Fayette county, who the state's first state witness.

He told the jury the story of the finding of the body of the dead man by himself, former Sheriff T. M. Curling and Loy Turner on October 28, 1924.

"Langston's head was beaten to a pulp," Harris said. "His assailants evidently used some blunt instrument in the attack. We trailed his supposed killers over a considerable distance and later lost it."

To Use Dictaphone.
Dictaphone "information" will play an important part in the presentation of the state's case, it became known here today. Full details of the testimony to be presented by this means were given by the state's attorney, who said that certain conversations between the accused and their "confidential" will be reproduced in an effort to fasten the case on the defense.

The announcement that the dictaphone would be employed was made by Federal Postal Inspector F. C. Ellis and E. M. Owen, solicitor general. Mr. Owen is being assisted in the prosecution by Lawrence Camp, of Fairburn.

The jury trying the case is composed of Messrs. J. R. Duran, J. R. McBride, Frank McFarland, Luther Mask, J. B. Kilgore, J. E. Barre, A. R. Herr, W. J. Williams, W. A. Watson, J. H. Charters, S. C. Horton and G. L. Brown.

HOUSE FIGHT ON RULES PREDICTED

Representative Linder in favor of his resolution. Representative Dykes announced that the printed copies of the proposed rule changes would be in the hands of all members by Tuesday morning and that they had been expected from the printer by Monday.

Representative Linder made a motion that his resolution be referred immediately to a committee of the whole house, but this was voted down by a large majority. Speaker Neill then referred the resolution to the rules committee to take its normal course, but this was voted down by a majority of Mr. Linder.

Representative Beck, of Carroll, according to predictions, on Monday brought up his resolution calling for a financial statement of the past three years from the state highway department. This resolution precipitated a brief debate on the highway department situation, the first time this subject, which centers state interest this year, has reached the floor of either house.

Mr. Beck explained that his resolution was not intended as a step toward a general investigation of the highway department.

Representative Culpepper, of Fayette, stated that he did not favor an investigation of the department, as it "would not amount to anything," and

Frequent Trips to Atlanta Are Explained by Vanderbilt

INTERESTED IN MANY ENTERPRISES

BY H. C. HAMILTON
Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., young publisher of three newspapers and in the market for other sites, sank back in a luxurious chair at the Biltmore hotel and wanted to know if it didn't feel good to get back under a stationary roof and see a real bed once more. His friend and managing director for the Vanderbilt tabloid newspapers, John Brodick, agreed that it did, and explained:

"Since we left San Francisco 19 days ago we have spent three days in bed in hotels. The other 13 have been devoted to the art of sleeping in a Pullman car."

This is only one of several trips the young newspaper publisher and his companion have paid to Atlanta recently, and Atlanta, wishing very much to know how come, are hereby notified that the trips have nothing whatever to do with a "Vanderbilt" newspaper in Atlanta. While Vanderbilt agrees with everyone that here is a splendid city, industrially, socially, and in every other way, he is not at the moment contemplating the establishment of a general business headquarters in Atlanta. The secret of the whole business lies in Vanderbilt's enormous business interests.

"People have formed the habit," said Vanderbilt, "of associating me with newspapers, since I am devoting most of my time to that field, and since I am a newspaper publisher. I have been fairly bombarded with questions regarding the possibilities of a newspaper here. As a matter of fact, I am not a newspaper publisher. I am a partner with Barron G. Collier in the advertising business. One of our principal offices is in Atlanta. I am a partner with Collier in the handling of nearly all of our street card advertising from here. Naturally I like to see how things are getting along."

The trip, as a whole, from San Francisco, and back through Los Angeles, across the southwestern section, to New Orleans, and other places, has been more of a general business junket than anything else," Vanderbilt and Brodick explained. Aside from a three-day visit to the Miami Daily News, which represents the Vanderbilt idea in Miami, the journey was wholly in line with other connections. There is a big hotel in Punta Gorda, Fla., which has been taken over by Vanderbilt and Collier. There are property holdings in Sarasota, and other places were visited. A trip was made to Tampa and Fort Myers. Then there is a matter of a million and a half acres of land in the state of Florida, which belongs to the Vanderbilt-Collier interests, and it had some attention also.

The weather in that section of Florida did not draw any burr from either Vanderbilt or Brodick. "At one time, while we were traveling by automobile, a nose-into-the-driver could not see the wind. The wind was driving against the side of our car so hard he feared it would overturn. He finally pointed the nose-into-the-wind and drove our car into a ditch, where we were very miserable until the weather calmed down a little."

"The weather is delightful," Vanderbilt added. "I think Atlanta is a wonderful place. For year-round climate, it is hard to beat, although, for children and those who are warm-blooded, the climate is not ideal. Miami. But the nights here are splendid after hot riding on trains and motor cars."

His plans call for establishment of two newspapers within the next six or eight months. One of these will be in the south, but the name of the city was withheld. It will be running within three or four months, according to present plans, and after it has started on its career the wheels will be set turning in another western city, and that, also, was not named. That will make the Vanderbilt group total five. The pioneer of the lot is in Los Angeles. The others are in San Francisco and Miami.

From here Vanderbilt expects to go to Asheville, N. C., where he and Brodick will attend a meeting of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association. Then the pair will head north, stopping at Washington and New York before paying a visit to President Coolidge at Swampscott, Mass. Then they will go to Detroit and Chicago before heading again to the Pacific coast. They will be here several more days, and short trips may be made to Birmingham, Greenville, S. C., and Spartanburg, S. C.

people which in the past permitted such notable contributions to peace and good will in the world.

"Although the world today is at peace, it does not mean the fruits of peace. The specters of fear and distrust stalk among the nations and antagonize their best efforts for economic, social and moral rehabilitation."

German Proposals.
"While it is the policy of the United States not to participate in the solution of European problems, and while therefore it would not be proper for me to express any opinion on the merits of policies now under consideration, I may be permitted to hail as a happy omen the world's peace and health the fact that Germany has proposed a fresh application of the principles of good will and mutual confidence."

(This, presumably, referred to Germany's proposals for a western European security pact.)

"With profound admiration for Germany's contributions to civilization," the new ambassador continued, "and with firm faith in the ability of the German people to surmount their difficulties, I am proud to have the honor to convey to your excellency the best wishes of the president and the government of the United States for the welfare of the German people."

Hindenburg Pleased.
President von Hindenburg, after expressing pleasure at receiving Dr. Schuman's credentials, said that he most sincerely for the kindly words you have just addressed to me. With deep satisfaction I gather that your government desires to continue to cultivate in the greatest measure possible the mutual friendship between Germany and the United States. He assured that the president and the federal government of Germany were remembering the numerous proofs of friendship received by our country from the United States during the recent difficult years, are animated by the same desire as your government. We will do whatever is in our power to make easier the fulfillment of the tasks connected with your gravely responsible office.

Spiritual Bonds.
"In addition to the extensive economic relations mutually connecting Germany and the United States, our two countries have always been bound together by strong spiritual bonds."

"I have no doubt that you, as a former student of three German universities, as a savant of world reputation, as president for many years of the famous Cornell university, which once before in your predecessor, Andrew D. White, and our distinguished diplomatic representative, will have an especially full appreciation of American-German cultural and spiritual relations."

"Your excellency's references to an exchange of German and American students, as a means of promoting mutual understanding, is a very timely suggestion. The exchange of students is a very important factor in the development of international relations."

Quake-Stricken City Begins To Clean Up and Rebuild In Midst of Destruction

Sudden Emergency Handled With Speed and Efficiency—Vivid Pictures Of Havoc Given.

Santa Barbara, Cal., June 29.—(AP) This city by the sea, which early today staggered under the blows of a rending earthquake, tonight surveyed its great losses and began fighting back.

No community ever took and absorbed punishment with more stoicism and calm.

Blue jackets of the naval militia and national guardsmen patrolled the heart of the business district, but never at any time, had there been the least sign of disorder.

No frenzy, no rushing about marked this disaster.

Dead Collected Quickly.

The dead were collected as quickly as possible, upwards of a dozen bodies. Close to a score of injured were cared for, and even as the ambulances moved off to the hospitals, there followed in their wake trucks loaded with battered brick and twisted steel.

The work of cleaning up had begun.

The handling of the sudden emergency could not have been more efficient if it had been a motion picture scene planned weeks in advance.

The main street of the city, State street, was a picture of calm ruin almost from end to end.

Not all of its business buildings were demolished, but all had suffered damage, and many were twisted and smashed beyond repair.

Jagged Crack in Bank Wall.

The imposing facade of the county bank appeared from the front as beautiful in its simplicity as ever, and down one side ran a jagged crack, like a lightning streak, through the concrete.

The San Marcos, a stately four-story class A structure of the newest type, just completed, occupied principally by professional men, seemed from the southern and eastern ends of its "L" to be untouched. But its other elevations lay flat.

The Santa Barbara mission, which fell in an earthquake during the early eighties, again was partly wrecked today. Its pair of towers are masses of crumbled debris.

The telephone company's building has all four walls still standing by virtue of half a score of props made from telephone poles.

Hotel Is Scene of Destruction.

Inside in the Arlington, a hostelry known to the travelers of two hemispheres, a picture of absolute destruction presents itself. The center dome crashed with the first tremor, carrying with it rooms in both diverging wings. The remainder of the building is ripped and torn in a number of places. Manager Richmond says it is a complete loss.

One newspaper, The News, is homeless, its city desk and editorial staff functioning from the Civic square, and its issues coming from the press of a sister publication at Ventura, 28 miles distant.

The morning paper, The Press, has plant intact, but lacks the power to turn its cog wheels.

Workers Already Busy.

Two distinct sounds, not loud, but persistent, stand out wherever one walks in the stricken area—the tumbling of bricks and mortar as workers remove dangerous walls, and the hammers of builders rushing up temporary structures.

Throughout the residential districts, particularly in the east side, the smaller frame houses in many cases were knocked askew by the tremor, some with fronts fallen out, chimneys and gables gone and yards flooded by the broken water mains.

Lawn rooms almost a premium for Santa Barbara residents tonight are shunning the confinement of their walls. The shock was so recent and fresh in their minds.

Guests Flee From Hotels.

From fashionable hotels and apartments, guests fled in the early morning, clutching their belongings or having been thrown from their beds. Many never went back for their belongings.

For 40 miles both ways up and down the coast, telephone and telegraph wires were whipped back and forth on their poles by the shocks, and became so badly tangled that it will take many hours' work to put them into commission again.

Several stretches of pavement to the north have been badly torn and in some places the highway is almost impassable.

Curiosity Centers on Hotel.

Morbid curiosity centered around the gaping walls of the palatial Arlington hotel.

Members of society from cities stretched across the continent walked about the lawns or sat nervously in camp chairs, watching a squad of wreckers working the hotel.

One of the first to enter was Mrs. Charles Perkins, millionaire widow of Burlington, Iowa, and Bertram H. Hancock, son of Gallen Hancock, Los Angeles millionaire realty dealer.

Under a flowering shrub of one of the driveways was parked a white ambulance awaiting the end of the search.

Red Cross workers manned relief stations which were opened at strategic points in the devastated business area, extending approximately 14 blocks in length.

Firemen Upon Job.

Firemen were everywhere on the job, but thankfulness poured from thousands of hearts at the absence of flames in the midst of this cataclysm. The fire was only caused by the fact that the electric power was cut off almost simultaneously with the first tremor.

An oppressive pall of golden haze hung over the whole Santa Barbara section from dawn to sunset, typical of "earthquake weather," said many who have gone through other earthquakes.

Not a breath of wind passed over the city and the day was sultry. The voices of the small knots of officials and guards and the intermittent crash of bricks and glass seemed cushioned against a ominous silence.

Quakes Continue All Day.

With a frequency that at first was alarming, but later accepted with calm, quakes continued through the day. Some seemed to be accompanied by muffled reports.

One of the interesting descriptions of the first earthquake by a Santa Barbara newspaper editor was that it seemed like a vast internal explosion.

It seemed like the ground was pushing the buildings up and then wrenching them down.

Not a breath of wind passed over the city and the day was sultry. The voices of the small knots of officials and guards and the intermittent crash of bricks and glass seemed cushioned against a ominous silence.

Adobe Houses Destroyed.

Many of the last remaining vestiges of the old Spanish regime at Santa Barbara—the adobe houses—were destroyed in today's earthquake. The tile roof, an adobe structure of Spanish architecture, which figured prominently in the colorful days of Governor Pio Pico, was the only one remaining intact. The tile roof was piled in shattered bits in the old patio, which was the scene of many Spanish day romances.

De la Guerra, with a history equal to El Pato, an adobe structure of Spanish architecture, which figured prominently in the colorful days of Governor Pio Pico, was the only one remaining intact.

The faded green shutters were broken and twisted in the heap of gray clay—once the social gathering place of Spain's cavaliers.

Old Mission Ruined.

Another ruin was the old Santa Barbara mission, a relic of the days of the padres along the historic Camino Real (king's highway).

The famous bell tower of the old mission were destroyed, the roof caved in and the walls cracked throughout, and torn apart at the corners.

Other smaller adobe towers of the old mission were destroyed, the roof caved in and the walls cracked throughout, and torn apart at the corners.

Legend Crumbles With Mission.

In the destruction of the aged adobe mission a legend concerning it crumbled with the old tower.

Oh, I'd use it for more things than I can tell in this space. Of course, it would have to be the best flashlight in the world. Which is another way of saying "Eveready."

COLONEL COOLIDGE IMPROVES RAPIDLY

BY LYLE C. WILSON.

Plymouth, Vt., June 23.—This cross-roads village has returned to its normal round of work and homely pleasure, reassured by the presence of the president and the promise of the attending physicians that Colonel John Coolidge, the president's father, will recover from the operation he underwent Sunday.

Colonel Coolidge's convalescence has been so satisfactory that Dr. A. I. Chute, who performed the operation, was able to return to Boston Monday. Later in the day, Major J. H. Boulton, the president's physician, who has been in charge of the squad of army medical men attending the president's father, announced that his 80-year-old patient was improving even more rapidly than the consultants had dared hope.

Almost Back to Normal.

Coolidge's temperature and pulse were almost normal; and not only this announcement but the day's activities of the distinguished occupants of the Coolidge's temporary home, the home of the president's father, the Coolidge family, had been so satisfactory that Dr. A. I. Chute, who performed the operation, was able to return to Boston Monday.

Train Time to Los Angeles

Chicago, June 29.—(AP)—At 4 o'clock tomorrow morning an automobile will leave Chicago in an attempt to break the record of the fastest train to the Pacific coast. The car, driven night and day by three drivers working in four-hour shifts, will try to reach Los Angeles in less than 68 1/2 hours, running time of the fastest overland passenger train.

The trip is in charge of Morris and Sam Klein, Chicago jewelers, who say a group of 18 men have wagered $50,000 against $10,000 of their money that the feat is impossible. With them will be Dick Hock, former professional automobile racer. While one man is driving and the other sitting with him to watch the road and assist, the third man will sleep in a bed which has replaced the tonneau of the car, geared to 75 miles an hour and with

'Flapper' Teacher Is Upheld

SHE SMOKES, BUT BOARD GIVES HER A JOB

In Small New Jersey Town

Secaucus, N. J., June 29.—The "modern girl" won a victory Monday night in the ranks of a small town board of education when the local board ignored protests against pretty Helen Clark, 22-year-old Secaucus teacher, who smokes cigarettes.

The board recommended that Miss Clark be retained on the teaching staff, despite charges that her fondness for cigarettes had impaired her efficiency.

About 200 persons crowded into the classroom where the board heard the charges.

Miss Clark, who is tall and dark, answered the questions of the board calmly.

Several teachers testified as to her efficiency and the progress of pupils entrusted to her.

The north end of the mountain on a Friday night is cracking, and the crack is slipping down into the river almost perceptibly.

Indications are that when the landslide does occur, a lake, which will

GET FIGHTER

IN MONEY

McCarney is making another grab for the money. He has made several grabs in the past.

Some managers come hustling along, sound their horns, peddle a lot of fish and get rich in a few months. Some of them get the breaks, in other words, and others such as Will McCarney get the fragments.

Will McCarney is managing Charlie Weinert again. Charlie, who is against him, gave him a lot of money and gave him his match with Harry.

If Weinert beats Will, as he very well may, McCarney will have a fighter in the money at last, for Charlie will then be qualified for the final "elimination" bout with Gene Tunney, preliminary to the next appearance of Jack Dempsey.

GREENVILLE TAKES OFFENSE

McCarney is making another grab for the money. He has made several grabs in the past.

Greenville, June 29.—Home runs by Keller and Rodriguez, with men on base, accounted for five runs as Greenville defeated Columbia in the opening game of the series here today, 7 to 4. Howard Burkett, former Sparta star, obtained recently by Greenville, hit home runs today and batted a thousand. Lindstrom and Peritt, who were hit by Greenville, batted .500.

THE HAWK

By DANE COLLIDGE

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

SYNOPSIS.
Dane Collidge, known as the hawk, works as night rider for the NA cattle company, in the Powder river district. Dull Knife Arranta, a small, indolent, cattleman, quarrels with the range boss, Connolly, over some lost cows. Arranta transfers his quarrel to Cato Clark, the company manager, who travels about the country always accompanied by his stepdaughter, Anita Morgaridge. Arranta draws his gun on Clark. The hawk interferes and threatens to shoot Arranta if he doesn't put up his gun. After Clark's departure Connolly quarrels with the hawk, and fires him. The hawk rides over to the Clark home to tell Anita he has left the outfit but is always at her service. Clark offers to keep him on as one of his hired gunmen but the hawk refuses his offer, thus making a bitter enemy of Clark.

The hawk rides into Bull Hook, the nearest town to the range, and there meets Dull Knife Arranta. He offers to buy in partnership with Arranta, and together they retrieve the latter's lost cattle. Clark's hired gunmen attack the partners without success but kill one of the settlers in a raid on the small settlement of the district. The settlers and rustlers from the hills join in a hunt to capture Clark's men. Clark leaves Bull Hook but presently returns with Ben Salpica, a notorious gunman, and Grace, an Englishman, who represents the British stockholders of the NA company. The hawk and Arranta force Clark and Salpica to leave town. The hawk explains conditions in the region to the Englishman. Grace informs him that the company intends to move its herd into Montana and offers him a job. The hawk refuses, but promises his assistance and that of all the rustlers in the country if Clark is dismantled. Later Grace tells the hawk Clark is no longer manager of the company and his connection with it will cease when the last cow crossed the line. He also says Clark had taken permission to buy up the northeast of the herd and the brand for a few hundred dollars. The hawk offers Grace two thousand dollars for the brand and remounts as he has discovered that hundreds of cows were left behind. He wires his father who sends him the money, and he buys the brand in the strays. The hawk calls on Mrs. Clark.

INSTALLMENT XX.

Anita Returns Alone.

At last the hawk understood why Anita continued to travel about with Cato Clark when she hated and feared him. It was only by submitting to her stepfather's will that she saved her mother's life. Anita with him on some terrible journey. Mrs. Clark told the hawk, "I wouldn't say where it was—and I've been waiting day and night for over a week, not knowing what would happen. If she leaves him—O, it's horrible, horrible!" "Where is Clark?" the hawk asked abruptly.

"I don't know," she said. "They drove off south."
"South!" he repeated, "were they going to cross the desert? I wonder what he's up to now?"
"I shouldn't have let her go," sighed the woman, and the hawk suddenly remembered Anita.
"I'll go and get her," he offered.
"No—don't!" she shuddered. "He'll kill her if you do. Just wait—Anita will be back."
"What makes you think she'll come back?" he demanded.
"She was getting desperate," sobbed

Anita Morgaridge looked pale and drawn, but as the hawk held up his hands she smiled and jumped out into his arms.

"I'm so glad," she sighed. "I was afraid you might be gone. Have you heard about—him? Mr. Clark?"

"Yes," nodded the hawk, releasing her reluctantly and tying the grays to a tree. "Sit down—you're all tired out."

"I drove clear from the railroad in a night and a day—I knew I could beat them home; but do you know that they're riding to get in behind you and drive off all your cattle."

The hawk shook his head, and sat down.

"I guessed it, though," he answered moodily. "They've killed two of Hooten's men, already."

"Cavey came through here a while ago with his hand all shot up and said they killed Cub Lee. He's gone down to rouse the settlers."

"O—you aren't going with him?" she gasped.

"Why, sure," he smiled. "Why not?"

"But you might get killed!" she protested.

"Don't think so," he said. "But poor old Cavey feels awful bad—said he loved Cub Lee like a son."

"I wish you wouldn't go," she coaxed, with a sigh.

"He's a hired some desperate men and they get $20 all around for every rustler they kill. Can't you stay away this time—for me?"

She glanced up at him appealingly but the hawk did not answer—he remembered what Cavey had done for him. When he was in distress with his cowboys dead for sleep and the night with its stampedes coming on, Cavey Hooten and his rustlers had ridden to his rescue and saved his steers from Clark. Could he refuse to do as much for Cavey? He had not promised him—it was taken for granted.

"We're waiting for the settlers," he said.

"I believe you like to fight," she accused with sudden heat. "That's why I hate him—he's a killer."

"Yes, he's a killer, and a cowardly one, too. Your mother said he even threatened you. Well, if somebody doesn't go in and put an end to this—"

"I don't want you to go," she shuddered. "You don't know—you wouldn't believe—now he hates you. He's offered her and a thousand dollars reward and the first one that sees you will shoot."

"Yes, and I'll shoot, too!" returned the hawk.

"He's taken the worse of all these gunmen he had and I heard him tell-the woman. "Just before she left she gave me this pistol, and cocked it. And she told me, if he came back to hold it hard and pull the trigger. But she knows I can't do it—I'm afraid!"

"Cub put up a good fight."

She started toward the door, and as the hawk followed after her she laid her hand on the bolt and looked back.

"Please go," she whispered. As the hawk rode for home he remembered the dark spring day when Clark's gunmen had swooped down on the settlers—what was there to keep him from raiding behind the wall, and driving off his cattle with the rest?

The hawk rode like the wind, but when he reached home all was quiet and Dull Knife only laughed at his fears.

All the next morning the hawk kept his eyes on the rustlers' trail. It came zig-zagging down from one bench to another, a line of white against the red of the wall, and along towards noon he saw a horseman top the rim and come spurring down the shaly slope.

"That's Cavey," pronounced Dull Knife, looking up.

"Yes, and something has happened," stated the hawk.

Dull Knife burst into a laugh but when Hooten came galloping towards them he stopped short and rushed out to meet him.

"What's the matter, Cavey?" he called. "Was it Cheaters?"

"Yes, and the murderin' son-of-a-goat killed Cub Lee!" cried Hooten. "Look here what they did to my hand!"

His grizzled head drooped and as they led him into the cabin the tears ran down his cheeks.

"Cub put up a good fight," he said, "but luck was agin him. Poor Cub, I loved him like a son."

He sat down on the bed while the hawk bound up his hand and Dull Knife poured out some strong coffee and then, straightening up, he limped out and mounted his horse and galloped away towards town.

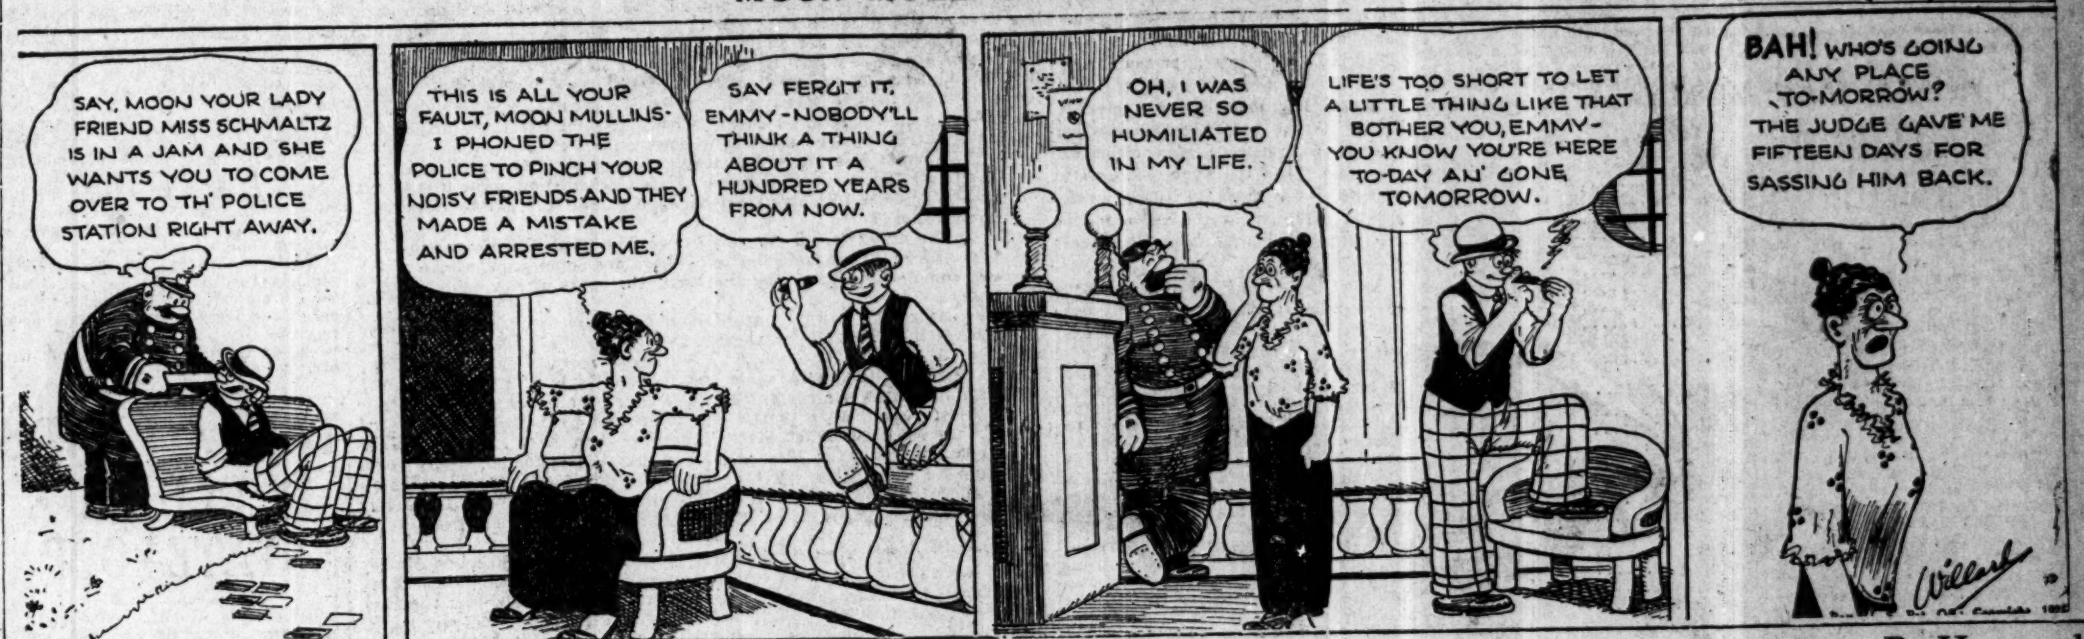

"All, what'll we do?" demanded the hawk.

"Wait here," answered Dull Knife, "until Cavey gets back. They're going to be hell over this."

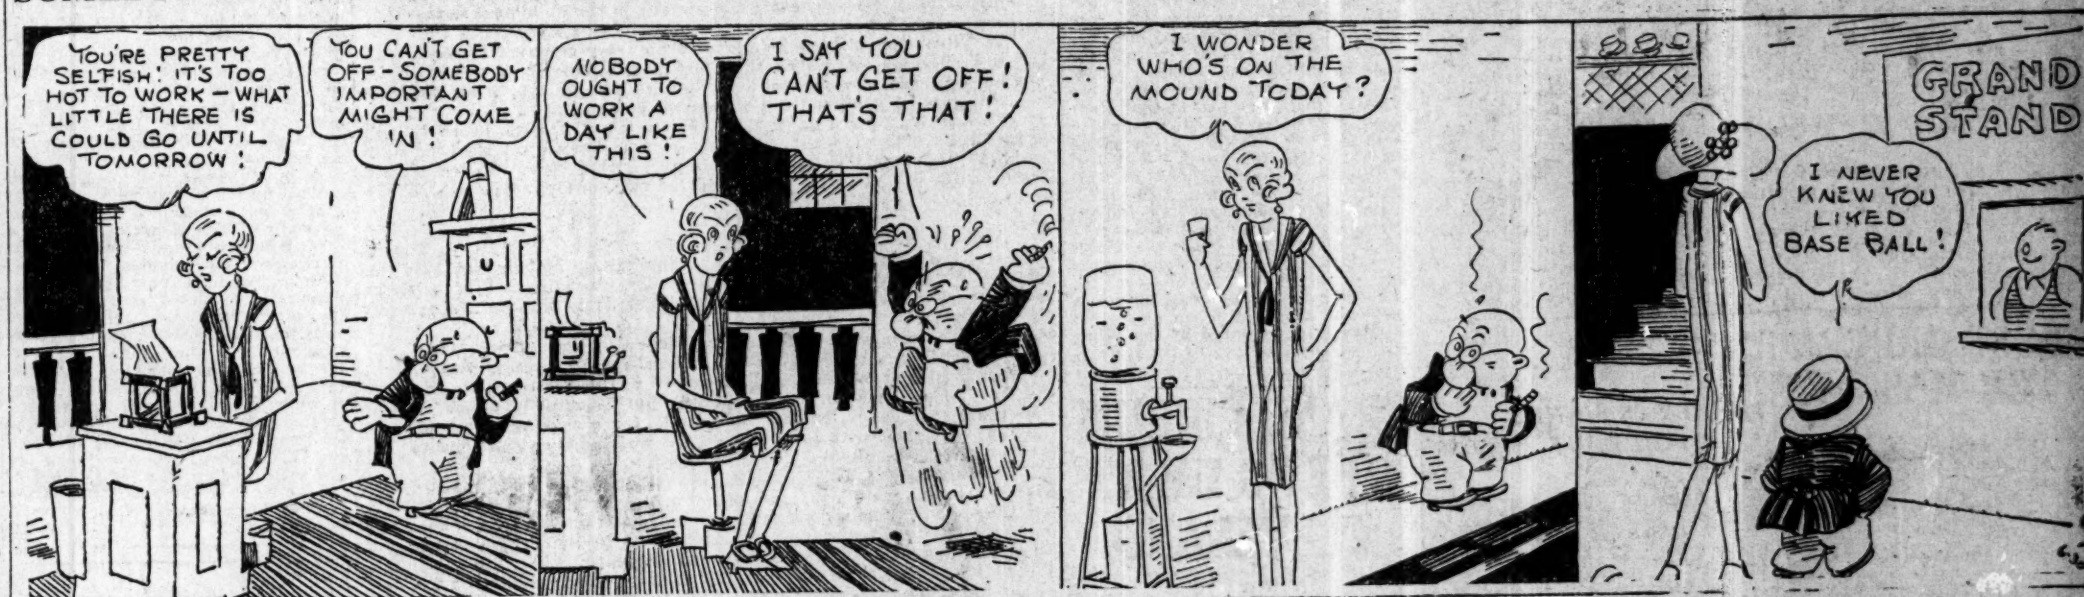

They waited, gathering spare horses for the posse to ride and cooking bread and meat to take with them; and the hawk was impatiently waiting the road when he saw Clark's team of grays round the point. But this time, instead of Clark with Anita beside him, there was only the trim figure in blue. She had left Old Cheaters at last. Half standing in her seat she brought the grays to a stop, and the hawk ran out to meet her; but Dull Knife, looking out, merely grunted to himself and went back to make more bread.

New York, June 29.—With the trend toward reduced estimates of the end-June crop indication promoted by the continued dry weather in the southwest, prices made new high ground for the movement in the cotton market today. October sold up to 24.17, or 23 points net higher and 262 points above the low price last month. At this level the advance was checked by realizing and there were reactions of 20 to 25 points, but after selling off to 23.95, October closed at 24.05, the general market closing steady at net advances of 18 to 20 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 12 to 15 points on firm Liverpool cables and bullish private crop reports, five of them with condition figures ranging from 72 up to 75.3, interpreted as pointing to crop indications of between 12,000,000 and 13,000,000. The early advance to 24.00 for July and 24.25 for December, met a good deal of realizing, however, and the afternoon market was unsettled by the reports of an earthquake in California, higher call money rates and reports of nervousness in the stock market. July eased off to 23.95 and December to 24.05, but recovered part of the loss on fresh buying or covering by early sellers.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK

New York, June 29.—Cotton spots steady; middling 24.80.

GAINS SEEN AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, June 29.—The cotton market started out quite active today owing to the execution of a considerable volume of buying orders accumulated since Saturday's close. While Liverpool cables were better than due, the main incentive to the advance was the continued dry weather in the western belt and the lack of rain shown by the map except along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. First trades showed gains of 23 to 26 points and the market continued to improve particularly when the map showed no rain in the drought-stricken area and the official forecast promised generally fair weather in the west.

October traded to 23.65, and December to 23.75, before the middle of the morning and these figures proved to be the day's highs, or 35 to 36 points above Saturday's close. The market became easier towards mid-afternoon, realizing and profit-taking and prices made new lows for the day at 23.37 for October and 23.47 for December. The decline was largely due to the report of an earthquake which weakened the stock market. The call money rate advanced in New York to 6 per cent.

Towards the end prices rallied again when it was reported that the earthquake had not been felt at Los Angeles or San Francisco. The close showed net gains for the day of 15 points in the December and 21 to 23 points on active new crop months.

As many as six private crop reports were issued during the day, giving condition averages ranging from 72 to 75.3 per cent, acreage totals of 44,332,000 to 45,592,000, and an indicated crop of 13,282,000 to 13,827,000 bales. These reports did not exert much influence.

Exports today, 5,611 bales.

Industrial Growth Of South Is Shown By Southern Report

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(Special.)—Wonderful progress made by the south in expansion and diversification of its manufacturing activities during the past 20 years is graphically shown by figures contained in the annual report of the Southern Railway company just issued.

From 1904 to 1924 tons of manufactured products, including all less than carload freight, handled by the Southern increased from 8,820,828 to 12,291,573 tons, or 111 per cent.

During the same period tons of products of mines increased from 8,568,471 to 18,006,314 tons, or 110 per cent, an increase of 28 per cent. The report also calls attention to the phenomenal development of the textile industry in the south and its extension to new fields in western North Carolina, eastern Tennessee and northern Georgia; marked expansion of cement manufacturing, and healthy growth of the southern iron and steel industry.

300 DEAD RIFFIANS COUNTED ON FIELD

Fes, French Morocco, June 29.—Three hundred bodies of dead Rifian soldiers were counted on the battlefield around Bou Haila Monday, following a strong French offensive. The French inflicted heavy losses and their attacks apparently disorganized the enemy ranks.

The French offensive, opening five days ago, is still continuing. The Rifians have been repulsed everywhere except at one point in the Tafelalta region, where the tribesmen advanced by infiltrations.

High Lights in Cotton Market

BY THEO. H. PRICE, Editor Commerce and Finance.

New York, June 29.—Some unexpected low crop estimates, the reappearance of the boll weevil, heavy July tenders in New York and a distinct improvement in the dry goods market, are the more important news items in the week cotton news.

The weight that should be given to each item is hard to determine. The July tenders checked the advancing theory that the market was beginning to develop upon the alleged deterioration in the crop, but they have cleared the way for an unobstructed rise if conditions justify it.

It is really too early to speak with definiteness about the boll weevil. It is an insect which makes an extraordinary appeal to the imagination and leads many into unconscious exaggeration.

But there is no doubt about the improvement in the dry goods market. It is obvious in Chicago as well as in New York and one of the largest firms in Worth street admits that they have sold a considerable shipment of cotton goods to China last week for the first time in three years.

It is true that the Chinese demand may be due to the strikes that have caused the shut down of the native mills, but what our American manufacturers should be concerned with is the fact that they are cheerful when they get them.

Crop news there is an inexhaustible supply—good, bad and indifferent. Some of the latest reports are of the kind that gratifies the bears. To attempt an interpretation of it would be a waste of time.

Until recently an average of public opinion as to the size of the crop would probably have been around 15,000,000 bales. But the popular view was changed by the formal estimates issued toward the close of the week. There were four of them. J. W. Jay & Co., put the presently indicated yield at 14,700,000 bales; Norman Mayer & Co., say 15,541,000 bales;

LOSSES ARE SEEN IN CURB MARKET

Reactions in the stock market today were predominantly in the direction of losses in the curb market, although isolated strong spots were scattered throughout the list.

Selling of the oils started in the shares of companies owning property in California, on the theory of possible loss through earthquake damage and then spread to other issues in that group. Humble, Prairie Oil and Gas, Standard Oil of California and Standard Oil of New York and New Jersey dropped a point or two, the net losses in other active issues being held to fractions.

Electrical Refrigeration, issues showed independent strength. Kelvinator was bid up to a new high record at 42 but lost a good part of its gain on profit taking. Nizer Corporation "A" duplicated its high of 53 3/4 on publication of an analysis showing current earnings nearly double those of last year. The "B" stock into which the "A" is convertible shared for share, but was not admitted to trading tomorrow.

Public utilities lost ground on profit taking. National Power and Light, broke 6 points and losses of over 20 points were recorded by Commonwealth, Electric Bond and Share and Middle West Utilities.

St. Regis Paper touched a new peak of 65 7/8 and then yielded, realizing. Chapin Sales advanced more than a point to within a fraction of the year's high. Intercontinental Rubber stock, which had been the announcement of an increase in tire prices by some of the leading companies.

Wilson slipped on his bride's ring at a wedding of platinum and diamonds. It rested above the diamond engagement ring which Mrs. Dodge has been wearing since last April. The bridegroom, who is 42 years old, just one year the senior of his wealthy bride, came to Detroit five years ago, and was comparatively unknown here until last spring.

When the ceremony was over Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left for New York city, where they will embark for Europe to honeymoon in France, Switzerland and other European countries for the next several months.

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Selling apparently inspired by the raising of call money rates to 6 per cent, the highest since December 31, 1923, and the uneasiness over the California earthquake disaster, turned the course of prices downward in today's market after an early period of irregularity. Net losses in the active issues ranged from fractions to five points.

Profit-taking was rather heavy in some of the recent favorites. American Can closed five points lower at 183, after selling as low as 181 1/2, while net losses of 2 to nearly 4 points took place in Dupont, General Baking, Havana Electric, Manila Electric, Matheson Alkali, Inland Motors, Inland, May Department Stores, Pacific Gas and Electric, United Tank Car, United Fruit, United States Iron Pipe, Universal Pipe, and Worthington Pump.

The earthquake news caused extensive liquidation of the California oils. Losses of a point or so were recorded by California Petroleum, Pan American Petroleum, and Standard Oil of California. Liquidation of frightened investors also caused heaviness of shares of oil companies owning property in California, such as the Market Street Railway, Southern Pacific, and Electric. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific closed lower, the latter ranging from 1 to 2 1/2 points.

The decline was by no means general. Independent strength being shown by a number of railroad rubbers, such as the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. Higher tire prices stimulated the demand for United States Rubber common and first preferred. Goodyear preferred advanced 1/2 point, and Goodyear common advanced 1/4 point to a new top at 17.64 cents. Swedish kroner touched par of 26.50 cents.

Uneasiness Over Earthquake Also Inspires Heavy Selling

Selling of the oils started in the shares of companies owning property in California, on the theory of possible loss through earthquake damage and then spread to other issues in that group. Humble, Prairie Oil and Gas, Standard Oil of California and Standard Oil of New York and New Jersey dropped a point or two, the net losses in other active issues being held to fractions.

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Selling apparently inspired by the raising of call money rates to 6 per cent, the highest since December 31, 1923, and the uneasiness over the California earthquake disaster, turned the course of prices downward in today's market after an early period of irregularity. Net losses in the active issues ranged from fractions to five points.

Profit-taking was rather heavy in some of the recent favorites. American Can closed five points lower at 183, after selling as low as 181 1/2, while net losses of 2 to nearly 4 points took place in Dupont, General Baking, Havana Electric, Manila Electric, Matheson Alkali, Inland Motors, Inland, May Department Stores, Pacific Gas and Electric, United Tank Car, United Fruit, United States Iron Pipe, Universal Pipe, and Worthington Pump.

Liquidation of frightened investors also caused heaviness of shares of oil companies owning property in California, such as the Market Street Railway, Southern Pacific, and Electric. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific closed lower, the latter ranging from 1 to 2 1/2 points.

The decline was by no means general. Independent strength being shown by a number of railroad rubbers, such as the Great Northern and Northern Pacific.
